Extensive Fire Zone. The fire zone extended along both sides of Albany street south from Dover street, on the east side wiping out the buildings and ten million feet of lumber piled in the Fort Point channel docks of the Blacker & Shepard company, and on the west side extending to the Thayer street public playground. Five brick buildings on the west side of Albany street were destroyed. These included a three story tenement block, four woodworking factories and the Boston fire department repair station, in which several pieces of fire apparatus were lost.
